LOCAL AND PERSONAL

NEW BUSINESS HOUSE GOING UP.

One of the most substantial buildings erected in Hondo in a number of years is under construction by Mr. Jacob Reilly on the property recently purchased from Mrs. Fritz J. Leinweber on the corner opposite the Southwest corner of College Square. The corner lot is occupied by a substantial brick building in which the Jos. Palle Bargain Store is now housed. The new building will be a 30-by-100-foot structure built on to the old building on the north side. A 28-by-30-foot extension in the rear of the old building will make the two buildings the same length and give the whole structure a compact and substantial appearance.

The new structural work will be with a framework of re-inforced concrete with walls of hollow tile built in. The front will be of modern plate glass and the building will have modern sanitary equipment as well as heating and lighting systems. A convenient parking place is planned for the rear and north side of the building.

Joseph Palle is the architect who drew the plans and Alfred G. Brucks the contractor and builder. We understand that L. B. Grell will occupy the new building with a modernly equipped grocery store when it is completed.

HONDO BOY HELPS IN FARM ORATORY.

The college farm dormitory at the Texas College of Arts and Industries, Kingsville, enters into its fourth year of service to the college with a personnel of fourteen students drawn from various parts of the State, from the piney woods of East Texas to the magic valley of the Rio Grande.

This farm dormitory, a self-sustaining unit of the Agriculture Department of A. and I., is run on a co-operative basis, and is headed by Lloyd Luker, senior from Stockdale.

Henry Bendele, freshman from Hondo and graduate of Hondo High School, is assistant dairyman. Others from Medina County in the organization are Don Langston, freshman from Devine, assistant field man; Tom DuBoise, freshman from Devine, assistant field man.

Henry Bendele is the son of Mrs. Callie Bendele of Hondo.

OIL LEASING ACTIVE.

Judge M. Schorobiny, the law along Quihi valley, was in town on business Tuesday and from him The Anvil Herald learns that there is considerable activity in oil leasing in his bailiwick.

Captains Roberts and Bogle of the Texas National Oil Company of San Antonio are leasing properties there and if five thousand acres can be secured it is planned to drill a test well within the next six months. Judge Schorobiny says it is planned to make a real deep test into the Pennsylvania sand if it is necessary to go to a depth of 5000 feet.

There has been considerable leasing, we understand, in the territory south of Hondo, but we are not informed as to drilling plans.

LADIES' BRIDGE CLUB.

The Ladies' Bridge Club and several guests were entertained Thursday of last week, with Mrs. Fletcher Davis as hostess. Trophies for auction were awarded Mrs. L. J. Brucks and Mrs. H. J. Meyer for high scores for members and guests, respectively.

Mrs. O. B. Taylor and Mrs. B. R. Eichenroht won the cut prizes. Refreshments of molded fruit salad, saltines, cake and iced tea were served to the following: Mesdames L. J. Brucks, Ed. Cameron, J. M. Finger, L. E. Heath, Robert Kollman, H. J. Meyer, W. O. Rothe, F. H. Schweers, O. B. Taylor, E. G. Pope and B. R. Eichenroht and Miss Lillian Brucks.

QUIHI NOTES.

Because thou hast done this thing . . . I will multiply thy seed . . . and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies. Gen. 22:16-17.

Had Abraham speculated on a big reward for his crude obedience when he marched out to Moriah for that contemplated sacrifice? That's the question. If so, the whole affair loses its ethical value; it's merely fishing for a big tarpon with a tiny bait. Quite often you hear the charge that Christians are Christians for what's in it, for the prospects towards a great reward held in store for them beyond; just a matter of profitable speculation; cheap business. What's to it? The first and great commandment of the Old and New Testament (Deut. 6:5; Matt. 22:37) reads: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy soul, heart, mind. The second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Such love loves the highest Good in God and man for its own sake, without reflecting on any reward, without even keeping a record of it. "Lord, when saw we thee an hungry, thirsty, a stranger, etc., and ministered unto thee?" No thought of reward. Whereas the reward speculators, parading with their record, fare rather ill. Lord, Lord, they shout have we not prophesied, cast out devils, "and in thy name have done many wonderful works?" What's our reward, is implied in the question. And the Lord's answer is quite disillusioning: "I never knew you; depart from me." "By grace are you saved through faith . . . not of yourselves . . . it is the gift of God, not of works," St. Paul asserts. And this bliss of salvation, indeed, includes all those rewards mentioned quite often as a specific incentive for those in tribulation, persecution, for those that have given up home and all for the Lord's service, etc., to remind and rally and cheer their hearts. And ever so often the reward is already visible here below in the fruit, the effect and consequences of a deed that has become happy seed. Abraham did not rely on a reward. The things promised now had been promised him before; not he, but later centuries, would see the effect of his faith and obedience; he already had all the blessings he could hold. "I am thy . . . exceeding great reward," his God had said years before. Truly, reward enough for Abraham and for you.

And so the oldest and longest affiliated member of Bethlehem's Lutheran congregation is no more. Another Neumann has gone to her heavenly home. Through the busy and crowded Saturday-afternoon streets at Hondo, her remains were carried to the old Quihi Cemetery where the first corpse was laid to rest almost a century ago. She is the last to find her resting-place there. Her memory will be honored.

The Sunday services were rained out. The Lord's doing; we submit. Next Sunday we can make up. Mission Sunday. Two services. The English evening service is in charge of the Rev. W. C. Leifarth. We expect the whole parish well represented. Here is the Lord's work, and if we are what we profess to be, Christians, then Christ's work of missions must be dear to our heart. Let's prove it with heart and hand.

Sunday, the 11th of October, is Synodical Sunday. The American Lutheran Church, our church, is in session over at San Antonio from the 9th to the 17th. Many hundreds of representatives will be present from America and abroad. You should get in touch with them and bear their message on that Sunday at any of the Lutheran churches there. We'll drop our services here and go there. Join us. It's worth it.

Announcements for October 4: German Mission service at 10; Sunday school in full at 9; English Mission service at 7:30 P. M. New schedule. "O Zion, haste, thy mission high fulfilling."

STUDENT AID EMPLOYMENT SECURED BY THREE MEDINA COUNTY SCHOOLS.

Austin, Sept. 29.—The National Youth Administration of Texas has approved applications of 3 schools in Medina county for students aid employment, Lyndon B. Johnson, state director, said.

Students assigned to jobs thus provided will receive a maximum monthly wage of $6 for doing socially desirable work under supervision of local school officials, he said.

The state headquarters is examining applications for aid from all schools making application and additional allotments of funds will be announced soon.

A pupil wishing to obtain employment under the NYA program should apply to his school principal, Mr. Johnson said. Allotments to the schools were made on the recommendation of a Placement Committee for this county appointed by the county superintendent.

Schools for which job allotments in this county have been made are: D'Hanis School, Yancey High School, and Hondo High School.

Applications from other schools will be acted upon as soon as they are received.

AN OLD ECONOMY.

By Clayton Rand.

Under the spell of false prophets millions of us are told that the frugality preached and practiced by our forefathers is now the bunk.

Under an old economy we even rolled scrap-string into balls, covered our pantry shelves with old newspapers and made rags into rugs.

In these spendthrift days new schools of thought have produced a strange economy that runs contrary both to divine teaching and human experience.

Waste is a sin. A just Jehovah will finally punish with famine a people who destroyeth food while children go hungry. This is not a religious superstition—it is common sense. (Copyright)

THE SWEAT OF COMMON FOLKS.

"Taxes, little or great, are the sweat of common folks," said the Portland Oregonian in a recent editorial.

The "common folks" are the great taxpayers of this country—sooner or later, directly or indirectly, they pay almost all the cost of government. There aren't enough "rich folks" to tax to make a dent in the Federal, state and local tax budgets.

Authoritative surveys have shown that if government took ALL the net income of persons in the higher income brackets, plus all the net income of American corporations, revenue would still fall far short of meeting outgo.

The moral is plain. Tax reduction is in the interest of every citizen and every business—and the greatest beneficiary of all would be the person of small means and the small business. The new excess profits tax is a case in point. Tax experts have pointed out cases where, under its provisions, some very large corporations can actually pay less in taxes than they did formerly—while almost all small corporations will have to pay more. The principal burden of the law will fall on the little fellow.

If you earn $25 a week, taxes take six or seven of those dollars—because what you pay for the article you buy must also cover its proportionate share of the hundred and one taxes paid by the producer, the manufacturer, the transporter, the insurer, the broker, the agent, the retailer, ad infinitum.—Industrial News Review.

TAXATION AND OUR INDUSTRIAL FUTURE.

A current economic review by the Department of Commerce, released by Secretary Roper, contains this telling commentary on business: "Future business prospects are in a degree conditioned upon the possibility of bringing (public) expenditures more in line with receipts, and thus eliminating, partially at least, the uncertainties prevailing in connection with future taxation and other budgetary problems."

Today American business is improving, and immediate prospects are good. But there can be no argument but that the prospect of mounting deficits and distorted budgets, and the fear of even higher taxes, is preventing business from improving much more rapidly. Thousands of investors are still afraid, with good reason, to put their money into private enterprises; thousands of executives are discouraged by policies that unreasonably curb profits—and in some cases make profits impossible, even though production and sales soar.

The Department of Commerce review hits the nail smack on the head. The future welfare of industry—and, consequently, the welfare of every worker, every investor, everyone with a home or a dollar in the bank or an insurance policy—is vitally dependent upon the sound solution of our tax and "other budgetary problems."—Industrial News Review.

League of Nations Assembly Seats Ethiopians—American Legion Elects Colmery Commander—Japanese Marines Occupy Part of Shanghai.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

Haile Selassie

HAILE SELASSIE couldn't whip the Italians in the Ethiopian war, but the fugitive emperor won the battle of Geneva and put Benito Mussolini's nose out of joint. After an exciting debate, the League of Nations assembly voted, 39 to 4, to seat the Ethiopian delegation, now headed by the emperor's American adviser. The negative votes were cast by Hungary, Austria and Albania, all under the thumb of Italy, and Ecuador. Ethiopia, Portugal and four other countries refrained from voting. Rather surprisingly Great Britain and France espoused the cause of Ethiopia, though it had been thought they considered the co-operation of Italy in the league of more importance than justice to the African realm. The heated debate was closed when Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, said: "Enough of this nonsense! There never has been any sufficient ground to unseat the Ethiopian delegation."

The credentials committee in recommending the action taken said it applied to the present session only. Its report asserted that certain documents which had been received by the members alleged that Ethiopian governmental authority has been set up in sections of Ethiopia not occupied by the Italians.

Seating of the Ethiopians made it certain that no Italian delegation would attend this session, and it was believed by many that Mussolini might withdraw formally from the league. It was a victory not only for Ethiopia but also for the smaller European powers, which felt that league submission to Italy would be disastrous to their own security.

Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the British admiralty, added to Italian resentment against Great Britain by declaring in London that the British intended to maintain their supremacy in the Mediterranean and would modernize and consolidate their naval, military and air defenses between Gibraltar and the Suez canal "in the light of recent experience." Malta, he said, would remain the first and principal base of the British fleet in the Mediterranean and would be strengthened to meet conditions. Work on Cyprus as a military, naval and air base is being hurried to make that island a complement to Malta. Sir Samuel asserted that the development of Italian air power has not endangered the British position in the Mediterranean.

THREE members of the maritime commission authorized in the closing days of the last congress were appointed by President Roosevelt. They are: Rear Admiral Henry A. Wiley, U.S.N. retired; Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, coast guard; George Landick, Jr., chief of the planning section of the procurement division of the Treasury department.

The commission will administer the ship subsidy measure act as a regulatory body in conduct of merchant marine affairs, and operate generally in the nature of the interstate commerce commission.

VETERANS of two great conflicts, the World war and the Civil war, held their annual conventions, the American Legion meeting in Cleveland and the Grand Army of the Republic in Washington. The legion elected Harry W. Colmery, a lawyer of Topeka, Kan., as its national commander and awarded next year's convention to New York city. Mayor La Guardia personally led the Gotham delegation in the big parade. This delegation included an impressive display of police and fire department bands, motorcycle squads and mounted officers.

Harry W. Colmery

In its business sessions the legion adopted a resolution asking the United States government to withdraw its recognition of soviet Russia. Other resolutions approved called for a 90 per cent reduction in immigration quotas and deportation of all aliens who are anarchists, communists, or affiliated with the Third Internationale; the removal from public relief rolls of aliens who have not applied for citizenship; universal application of the fingerprinting system in this country, and an investigation of methods used in disseminating "subversive doctrines."

The legion band championship was won by the Musicians' post, No. 394, of St. Louis, Mo.; second place went to Franklin post band of Columbus, O., and third to Musicians' post of Los Angeles. The Commonwealth Edison post drum and bugle corps of Chicago won the drum corps tournament.

Only about nine hundred survivors of the Union army were able to attend the G. A. R. encampment, and many believe it will be the last to be held. The aged warriors, headed by Oley Nelson of Iowa, the national commander, began their proceedings with a service in Washington cathedral. The route of their parade was six blocks on Pennsylvania avenue, the scene of the grand review of the Union armies before President Andrew Johnson seventy-one years ago.

C. H. Williams Ruhe of Pittsburgh, who ran away from home 72 years ago to join the Union army when he was only a lad of fifteen, today was unanimously elected to be commander-in-chief, and Madison, Wis., was named as the encampment city for 1937.

ASSERTIONS made by William Randolph Hearst and other opponents of the New Deal that the President "passively accepts" the support of the Communists have got under Mr. Roosevelt's skin. A statement issued through Stephen T. Early, his secretary, said:

"My attention has been called to a certain notorious newspaper owner to make it appear that the President passively accepts the support of alien organizations hostile to the American form of government."

"Such articles are conceived in malice and born of political spite. They are deliberately framed to give a false impression, in other words to 'frame' the American people."

"The President does not want and does not welcome the vote or support of any individual or group taking orders from alien sources."

"This simple fact is, of course, obvious. The American people will not permit their attention to be diverted from real issues to fake issues which no patriotic, honorable, decent citizen would purposely inject into American affairs."

Mr. Hearst, who was in Amsterdam, promptly replied by cable, saying in part:

"The President has issued a statement through a secretary. He has not had the frankness to say to whom he refers in the statement. I think I am justified in assuming that I am the object of the statement, and that I may courteously endeavor to correct Mr. Roosevelt's misstatements and to set him right."

"Let me say that I have not stated at any time whether the President willingly or unwillingly received the support of the Karl Marx Socialists, the Frankfurter radicals, communists and anarchists, the Tugwell bolsheviks, and the Richberg revolutionists which constitute the bulk of his following."

"I have simply said and shown that he does receive the support of these enemies of the American system of government, and that he has done his best to deserve the support of all such disturbing and destructive elements."

FOUR Chinese gunmen in Shanghai killed one Japanese marine and wounded two others, and within a few minutes a Japanese landing party more than 2,000 strong had occupied much of the Hongkew section of the international settlement. The Japanese naval commander declared martial law in that area and troops stopped buses and street cars in the search for the slayers. Tanks, armored cars, light artillery and machine gun squads poured through the streets and on into Chapei, the Chinese district that was the scene of furious fighting between the Japanese and the Chinese Nineteenth route army in 1932.

Stirling Fessenden, American chairman of the international settlement, was warned by Japanese officials to protect their nationals, and the White Russian volunteer regiment and special police in the French quarter were hurriedly mobilized.

Because of killings in Hankow and Pakhoi, Japanese marines already had been landed in those cities. Transports bearing reinforcements arrived from Japan.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE'S senate committee on civil liberties, investigating the activities of strike breakers, was told that a preacher was hired as a spy, girls did undercover work, picketers were scolded by live steam and strikers were electrocuted by secretly strung wires on company property. Witnesses testified, also, that men who direct crews of ex-convicts, panhandlers and sluggers take a small fortune annually from industry to combat labor unrest.

TOM K. SMITH of St. Louis, Mo., was elected president of the American Bankers association at the convention in San Francisco. Orval Adams of Salt Lake City was advanced to the first vice presidency, though it was said this was opposed by some because of his pronounced anti-New Deal convictions.

The executive council will select the meeting place for the 1937 convention. Mexico City was the only one to make a bid for the choice. Resolutions reported by the committee and adopted called on governmental divisions—national, state and local—to bring their expenditures more definitely under control and return to balanced budgets, and recommended that chartering of new banks be limited rigidly to the economic needs of the nation.

GEORGE P. JONES of Minnesota, who has been serving as a special assistant to the attorney general of the United States since 1934, has been made judge of the federal district court for the Virgin Islands. This is a recess appointment by President Roosevelt and is subject to confirmation by the senate. Mr. Jones planned to leave for St. Thomas about October 1. He succeeds Judge Albert C. Levitt of Connecticut, who resigned August 1 because, as he alleged, the Department of the Interior interfered with the processes of his court.

The oath of office was administered to Mr. Jones in Washington by Ugo Carusi, executive assistant to Attorney General Cummings, in the presence of Mr. Cummings and a number of other officials.

CHIEFS of police of the United States and Canada, attending the convention of their international association in Kansas City, drew this picture of the typical American criminal of 1936:

A lazy, vain, moderately educated city youth whose parents have separated; shielding his laziness and an inferiority complex behind a false bravado that leads him into crime; motivated by a desire to impress "the girl friend" with a flashy appearance of wealth.

Chief William J. Quinn of San Francisco said the large majority of the 6,000 inmates of San Quentin prison are under twenty-four years of age and that 98 per cent of them come from broken homes.

SEVERAL columns of Spanish Fascists and Moorish legionnaires were reported to be making a determined drive toward Madrid under the direction of General Franco, and the loyalists were falling back at the rate of five miles a day.

The rebel garrison of the Alcazar in Toledo was still holding out though the government forces, after dynamiting part of the old fortress, made attacks with flaming gasoline. The defenders lost heavily but the survivors kept up their deadly machine gun fire and repulsed the charges of the loyalists.

The American State department ordered the embassy in Madrid closed and warned all Americans still in the capital that they remained at their own risk. The consulate at Malaga also was closed and the consul went to Gibraltar.

IMMEDIATE action toward putting in operation a two-fold crop insurance and drought prevention program was called for by President Roosevelt. It is designed to guard the farmers and the consumers against the danger of food shortages or price collapses. Two committees were named to work out legislation to be asked of the next congress.

Mr. Roosevelt named Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace chairman of a committee directed to "prepare a report and recommendations for legislation providing a plan of 'all risk crop insurance,' and suggested that the system provide for payment of premiums and insurance in commodities. This is in accord with Wallace's proposed plan under which farmers would put part of their crops of good years into a pool from which they could draw in lean years. It would serve, he believes, to keep surpluses from destroying the price structure in good years and provide an "insurance" against crop failures in other years.

Morris L. Cooke, rural electrification administrator, was named chairman of another committee to draft recommendations for a permanent land use program designed to avert drought emergencies in the great plains area.

SPECULATION concerning what part Al Smith would take in the Presidential campaign seems to be settled by the news that he will deliver several anti-Roosevelt addresses, the first probably in Carnegie hall in New York in October. He is reported to be making out his own program and planning talks also in Massachusetts and New Jersey. It is said neither the Republican party nor the American Liberty league will be sponsor for his appearances. Until Mr. Smith announces his intentions it will not be known whether or not he will advocate the election of Governor Landon.

Here is the aggressive Republican candidate for the vice-presidency, as seen by the artist Alfred Panepinto.

Landon, Mr. Cummings

CHICAGO.—The attempt of the Roosevelt administration to frighten small store keepers from showing cards calling attention to the amount of invisible tax items concealed in the cost of nearly everything the average family needs is an indication that the question of taxation and waste is of paramount importance in this campaign.

This statement was made by Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National committee, who asked Attorney General Cummings what he intended to do to Gov. Landon because he said in his Buffalo speech:

"We cannot buy a stitch of clothing without the government's taking in taxes a part of the money we pay out. We cannot buy an ounce of food at our grocery stores without being taxed to support the government. We cannot go to a movie, or to a baseball game, or ride in an automobile without this invisible tax arm of the government reaching out and taking a part of the money we spend."

"These hidden taxes—federal, state and local—amount to about 20 cents out of every dollar we spend. In the case of the Federal Government alone they amount to more than $5 a month for every family."

"EXTRA GIRL"

When Texas Centennial Exposition officials began to select the Rangerettes, hostesses for the Exposition, they planned to have one who was born in each of the 48 states. Then along came Mabel Rooks, shown above, and she passed the strict requirements. Officials found later she had been born in the District of Columbia, so they increased the corps to 50, giving themselves a little leeway in the matter of states.

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington.—It has been exceedingly interesting to watch the progress of the Democratic and Republican campaign committees in their efforts to shape and join the issues upon which the electorate will choose the next occupant of the White House. There has been a tremendous amount of hauling and filling, each side coming forth with trial balloons in an effort to find out what it is that will attract the most interest among the voters and to determine what particular matters afford the best vehicle on which they can ride into office.

Campaign Issues

From the beginning of this year, President Roosevelt has been trying to shape his issue on the basis of a single question—whether the American people in dollars and cents are better off then they were when he took office. I think admittedly that if Mr. Roosevelt could force that question into the center of the stage and make it the real issue, he would have very little campaigning to do. But the trouble is Mr. Roosevelt has been unable to accomplish his purpose and no little credit for his threat to force a joinder of issues on this point is due to the Republican leadership. The Republican managers simply will not be led into that trap. Thus, we must look elsewhere to see what the real issues are, or are likely to be, in this campaign decision.

It has nearly always been true that the issues prominent early in the campaign have proved not to be the issues at all near the end of a political battle. This year promises to be no exception. Political leaders attempt to figure out the proposition upon which their opponents are most vulnerable and obviously this figuring takes place in advance. It has to happen that way in order that methods of attack can be arranged in advance.

The New Dealers thought they could smoke out the Republicans by shouting far and wide that the people as a whole are better off than they were when Mr. Roosevelt took office. But, again, it was a case where political strategy did not work. Even though many hundred thousands of people are better off, the fact remains that there are some twenty million persons receiving relief in one form or another and the further fact remains that there are somewhere between nine million and ten million workers without jobs. Consequently, Mr. Roosevelt's question whether people were better off in dollars and cents did not quite click.

In the meantime, the Republicans have found what they believe to be a very vulnerable spot in the New Deal armor and they are shooting at it with machine-gun rapidity. This question, this spot, centers around taxation. The Republicans apparently thought at the start of the fight that Democratic waste of federal money and the vast debt that was piled up would force a revulsion of feeling against New Deal policies. So they started out on that campaign horse. But they found that the question of taxation over-shadowed the other, even though the taxation about which the Republicans are talking has been an offspring of the alleged waste of the party in power.

I doubt that the taxation issue would have been as important as it is proving to be had not the New Dealers made a mistake in political strategy. This mistake, it may be said in passing, illustrates how very minor things influence the ultimate result in politics to a greater extent perhaps than in any other activity of American national life. The mistake which I refer to was made by Attorney General Cummings.

The story of the circumstance chronologically is something like this: The Republicans from their headquarters in Chicago began calling attention to increased tax burdens in connection with their exposure of the increase of more than thirteen billion dollars in the country's debt. They pointed out how, if the Roosevelt administration had not wasted money, preparations would not have to be made for raising the taxes and how, if this waste had not occurred, tax increases which we already have had would not have taken place.

As a part of the demonstration of increased taxation the Republicans issued campaign literature itemizing the amount of taxes each and every one of us pays on the common every-day necessities of life. They showed how each loaf of bread, each pair of shoes, each pork-chop, among other things, bears so much tax which all of us pay in buying those necessities of life.

Probably the distribution of this campaign literature by the Republicans would not have stirred up so much fuss in and of itself had it not been for the action of Attorney General Cummings. The Attorney General made some public threat that he would seek to indict those who were responsible for distributing this information, claiming that a federal law had been violated. Being attorney general of the United States, any statement from him got wide distribution.

But the Republicans, recognizing the potentialities of this situation, issued a challenge to Mr. Cummings to proceed with his threat of indictments. Their publicity statement on the point was just as violent as that of any red-blooded American boy who says to his playmate, "I dare you to!"

Well, the rejoinder of the Republicans rather put Mr. Cummings on the spot. I presume probably the threat and the resulting challenge still would have amounted to nothing except that the method employed by the Republicans capitalized on that threat by accusing the attorney general of seeking to prevent free speech and to prohibit discussion of campaign issues. If there is one thing that the American people resent, it is any attempt by a governmental agency of whatever character it may be that seeks to stifle discussion. They look upon it as a sign of dictatorship. Some where in their veins still courses the virus that overthrew King George in the birth of this nation.

That is why the Cummings threat is so important.

President Roosevelt announced the other day that he is preparing to start reorganization of the federal administrative agencies. He said he had arrived at the conclusion that such a course was necessary because there has been overlapping in function and jurisdiction among the many agencies created by the New Deal. It is the second time that the President has proposed reorganization of the governmental units and his new announcement promises to attract as much attention as did his original announcement which was made when he was a candidate during the 1932 presidential campaign.

For a long time, it has been plainly evident to observers in Washington that New Deal agencies were literally falling over one another and that many of them were constantly in conflict with others because the laws or executive orders, chiefly the executive orders, by which these agencies were created did not clarify their jurisdiction of their function.

A good deal of this trouble obviously had its origin in the haste that characterized the early efforts of the Roosevelt administration to establish machinery by which problems of the depression could be solved or alleviated. It always happens that when governmental agencies are created in such haste, ridiculous situations result. It was the case during the World war and it has been the case during the New Deal's efforts to solve depression problems under the emergency powers granted by congress. The truth seems to be that there is more overlapping, more conflict, now than there was during the World war.

I have known of numerous instances where one agency, under authority given it by the President, has promulgated rules and regulations having the force of law that did not conform to rules and regulations dealing with the same matters but coming from another unit of government. In addition, I have seen different interpretations placed on the same statute or the same regulation by two different agencies. In consequence, the citizen whose business practices or personal affairs were touched by government edict found himself prohibited from doing a particular thing on the one hand and ordered to do it on the other.

Thus, it would seem that it is high time for something to be done about reorganization. It would seem equally to be high time for elimination of some of the extra red tape of government which has been wound about the private lives of American citizens by the New Deal. Goodness knows, there was plenty of red tape before the New Deal certainly is worse now than it was before.

The thing that seemed to interest most of the writing fraternity in Washington, however, was not so much the alleviation of the conditions which I have mentioned, but the political aspects of the presidential announcement that new reorganization plans were under consideration. Some of these writers who are critical of the New Deal went back to the 1932 campaign records and dragged out to public view Mr. Roosevelt's promises respecting governmental complexity.

They had sold the historic mansion in Boston, and with their beautiful old household goods, had gone west as far as they could go, out to the Oregon wilderness. There, in the most glorious natural surroundings, they had built a huge stone house, as like the Boston house as possible, and filled it with their treasures. They were miles from the nearest town, and cut off from all easy contact with civilization.

Here the child, Deborah, grew up, with only her grandparents and the servants for her companions. Save for one trip to Boston with her grandmother when she was eight years old, she had scarcely been off her grandfather's land. In the early years, when she was yet a small child, she went infrequently with her grandparents over the rough mountain roads to the little country town, or was perhaps allowed to accompany old Gary, their servant, on a marketing expedition; but as she grew older, and her mother's beauty began to evidence itself in her, she was kept more and more closely at home. There were quite often guests at the great house when Deborah was a child, but they were grave elderly people like her grandparents, so that she grew up completely cut off from companions of her own age and generation. She had, however, a library full of books, and three people entirely devoted to her welfare.

It must be admitted that of the three, Grandfather, Grandmother and Gary, it was Gary who taught her the most interesting things. Grandfather taught her history, and science, and geography, and political economy; if he was a little vague in places it was because there was matters, of course, with which a woman need not sully her pure mind. Grandmother taught her needlework, and a number of things that made them both blush and over which they skipped as hastily as possible. But Gary—Gary told her stories of people.

"Now you'll never believe it," he would begin, "but it's a fact. I saw it with my own eyes."

"Saw what, Gary darling?" Deborah would ask delightedly, curling up her feet underneath her on the table. "What did you see with your very own eyes?"

"It was once when I was in New York," he would begin. "I was walking down Fifth avenue one day . . . that's a very interesting street, Miss Deborah, the most interesting street in the world, I've been told . . . and right in front of me there was a young lady walking along, all dressed up in a picture hat and feather boa two yards long, and she was crying. Crying fit to kill, if you can imagine it."

Yes, there was Gary. Grandfather and Grandmother kept the iron gates leading to the world locked and barred, but Gary lifted the shutters of a thousand little windows, magic casements, all of them, opening on the foam of perilous seas.

But no matter how staunchly Grandfather and Grandmother kept the iron gates locked against the world, they knew that some day they would have to be opened, even if only to allow themselves to pass through, on their last journeys. For many years the question of Deborah's future, when the iron gates should be opened, gave them anxious hours of discussion. She would have a fortune greater than her father's before her, since it had grown through the years. She had no relatives other than her grandparents, and to depend on the guardianship of old family friends, most of whom had never been in sympathy with Grandfather's ideas about Deborah's upbringing, was impossible. Deborah must be completely secure. So, when she was thirteen, eight years ago, Grandfather had gone away to San Francisco on a journey, and when he returned he had stopped frowning, and they told her that her future happiness was taken care of.

Courtney Graham, less than a year after the marriage of Deborah's mother, had taken unto himself a wife. For him to do so had been a blow, but after talking it over for a number of years, Grandfather and Grandmother had consoled themselves by saying that of course Anne, as far as Courtney knew at the time of his marriage, was happy; that if she had been dead, Courtney would have devoted his life to mourning her loss, would have considered himself a widower. No; Courtney had been a perfect New England gentleman and he had done no wrong.

He had a son, born two months after Deborah herself. The boy's name was Stuart, and now at thirteen he was a tall handsome lad of great promise. His father and grandfather both thought that a second attempt at an alliance between the two families might prove a happy one. So it was understood that if the young people were willing, they should marry each other when they grew up.

It was here that Mr. Larned showed that his unhappy experience had not gone for nothing. He was determined to leave nothing to chance. He was determined that everything should contribute toward making the young people willing to marry each other—although, of course, there was not the slightest reason why they should not be. But he made his will, and it was a model of ingenuity. In it he said that his granddaughter Deborah should inherit the large part of his fortune, amounting to something over a million dollars in government bonds. If and only if she married Stuart Graham on or before her twenty-first birthday. On her twenty-first birthday her grandfather, if he were alive, would be eighty-five years of age. It was not likely that he would live long after that date, so the old man faced the situation squarely: if he should die before her twenty-first birthday she and her grandmother were to live on the income from a selected list of more profitable securities chosen by him with great care; and if anything happened to prevent Deborah from marrying young Graham, then the fortune was to go to charities, but she was to have the income from the securities for life. The latter was sufficient to make her comfortable and keep her from want or poverty; but it was not sufficient to attract the attention of a scoundrelly fortune hunter such as her father had been.

The will was carefully planned and executed, and Grandfather smiled and nodded to himself whenever he thought of it. An absolute fool-proof and rogue-proof plan, he said to his wife over and over. In her gentle way she agreed.

Grandfather had died when Deborah was just past fifteen; and things had gone quite smoothly for nearly three years longer, with Gary managing everything, the house, the business letters, the money matters. But then something strange and unexpected had happened out in the world, and Gary began to go about with a worried frown. Finally—and Deborah was eighteen then—she had made him tell her the truth.

There was something about a crash in New York, something had toppled and fallen, and their careful list of securities had collapsed into a careless heap which was bringing them scarcely enough to live on. Grandmother didn't know, of course, Grandfather couldn't be told anything like that. Gary had been most relieved to tell Deborah, and it had been good fun at first, to think of themselves as poor. Of course it would be only until Deborah was twenty-one, and then they would be wealthier than ever. Until Deborah was twenty-one—it had run like a thread of song through everything they did, through all the little subterfuges to keep Grandmother from knowing, through the hard work, the gardening, the building of the smoke house to cure venison and fish for the larder, the cutting down and making over of Grandmother's old clothes for Deborah, the enlarging of Grandfather's things for Gary.

And then, suddenly, Deborah was twenty and a half.

Twenty and a half, and marriage was something unknown and frightening. What was marriage? Why did a girl have to marry a man, a young man she had never seen, and . . . well, when she did marry him, what happened? Grandmother wouldn't explain. She said Stuart was a gentleman, and anything Deborah didn't quite understand, he would explain to her. But it wasn't enough. And, for the first time in her life, Deborah couldn't ask Gary. Gary knew she didn't know, and he knew she was beginning to feel terrified and cold inside about it. And his kind old face was lined and heavy, and his eyes followed her about with misery and worry. They talked about love. Well, that was easy. Deborah loved Grandmother dearly, her sweet, fragile old face, her tender hands, her soft gentle smile. She would have done anything for Grandmother. But it wasn't like that; Grandmother had said so herself, blushing furiously. She said the love a woman had for her husband was something quite different, stronger, more wonderful.

TO MY FIRST-BORN.

You were so small, but one year old—
Your eyes dark blue, your hair spun gold;
Your skin soft, fragrant as a rose—
You left me at a spring day's close.
We laid you where the tall trees lean,
And crowded years have flowed between;
Yet though we've been so long apart,
You live forever in my heart.

My other children I shall see Grow tall, and change, and go from me.
Shall see, perhaps, their bright youth wane,
Watch, helpless, life inflict its pain;

See golden tresses touched with gray,
As in Time's tide, spring ebbs away.

But you, my darling, I shall hold Fast in my heart when I am old.
Your eyes as innocently blue,
Your soft hair still a golden hue.
Your baby arms as warm shall feel
As when beside you I would kneel,
A young girl-mother, reverent,
Above the treasure God had sent.

Time was when I wept bitterly,
And could not God's great wisdom see.

But now I am content to wait
For that glad morning, soon or late,
When I shall find you, safe from harm,
Close-sheltered on His loving Arm.

SOIL WASTE IN CHINA AND HERE.

Perhaps no other nation has run through its soil resources so recklessly and wantonly as the United States. Northwestern China is often cited as a classic example of a section where land misuse has brought poverty and ruin to its people. As nations go, the United States is young and its soils are by no means so washed and mined as those of northwestern China. But we have been traveling the road that leads to soil destruction at a rapid gait—perhaps at an even more hurried pace than that which led to the devastation of so much of China's soil. As a young nation we have sowed the "wild oats" of reckless land exploitation, and we are now paying for our escapade in washed land and worried people.—Eugene Butler in The Progressive Farmer.

Material aid is not all. Spiritual aid is needed.—Co. Theodore Roosevelt.

PROVED SEED BECOMING BASIS OF COTTON CROP IN WID-ER AREAS.

Desire to grow "bigger and better" cotton often leads the cotton producer into buying seed from a suave salesman in the highly competitive cotton seed business who is boosting some particular variety.

It is a frequent occurrence for the cotton producer to buy "novelty" seed stocks only to find in the fall that he has bought a "gold brick," says C. B. Doyle, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Not that the farmer is advised against paying a premium for good seed, says Doyle, but that he should attempt to obtain some information as to the "pedigree" of the variety before he buys.

When the dairyman invests his money in an expensive animal he has the Babcock butterfat test and the scales to back up the record of performance. In much the same way the trap nest furnishes a record on which the poultryman may depend. Now the cotton farmer can obtain seed with a record of performance that has received the acid test—through the one-variety cotton community.

Cotton growers are rapidly concluding that the one-variety community project is a source of good cotton seed, Mr. Doyle points out in citing a report from Roy F. Saunders, bureau agronomist stationed at Greenville, Texas.

In Texas—where growers in the Blackland area are undertaking the largest one-variety community, expected eventually to include some 5,000,000 acres—cost of production, which is influenced more by high lint yields than any other factor, and spinning quality have become the basis of varietal selection. Less attention is paid to claims of lint percentage, size of boll, size of leaf and other minor characteristics so often stressed by some seed salesmen.

Realizing that the greatest difficulties in maintaining pure seed stock come from field and gin mixing, farmers of Gonzales county, Texas, have started a program of obtaining pure seed and keeping it pure by all growing one variety.

"They did not organize to promote any particular kind of seed," Mr. Saunders reports, "but to supply themselves with the best pure seed at the lowest possible cost. It already had been demonstrated in the county that purity of good seed stock could be maintained indefinitely under isolated conditions, where ginning was confined to one variety."

The Gonzales county farmers perfected a simple organization in which each of the cotton communities organized and appointed a chairman. The community chairmen formed a county board whose duties it was to select a variety of seed and distribute the seed to member communities at cost.

The county committee arranged for the community best situated to plant the first 1,000 bushels of pure seed, Mr. Saunders said. The committee figured that this 1,000 bushels of seed would produce about 10,000 bushels the following season which would give each of the 23 communities 435 bushels. Another season would give each community sufficient quantities to plant the entire acreage.

Each grower in the county would pay 10 cents a bushel over the oil mill price for planting seed which would furnish the county community with ample funds to maintain and distribute the pure seed to each grower in the county.

In fact the Gonzales county plan is so simple and workable that the Texas Blackland Cotton Association, members of which represent growers producing fully one-third of the huge Texas crop, has adopted it for its five-million-acre one-variety venture. This work has the support of a state coordinating committee composed of representatives of the state extension service, the state experiment station, the state department of vocational agriculture, and the Bureau of Plant Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Seed stock of Rogers' Acala already has been selected for the association and the same manner of progressive distribution will be carried out so that in three years it will be possible for all growers in the area, including Gonzales county, to produce this variety.

This will eliminate "hit or miss" methods of seed selection. As the proved sire has become the standard for improving the dairy herd, proved seed is becoming the standard by which cotton growers will be assured good cotton crops under favorable conditions.

THE COUNTRY GRAVE YARD.

There's a dear little spot in the country somewhere
Set aside by brave hands and blest,
Where the grasses of earth grow under God's care
And our weary ones go there to rest.

I have gone there myself in my childhood day
And wended my way through the tangled mass,
To note the lone spot where some ancestor lay Scattered and few on a lone-some pass.

And whatever else some comrade might say
I remember I've often said,
That I never could wish to be laid away

In a place so unvisited.
But now when I go to that dear little spot
That overflows with the breath of God,
And rose bushes shelter forget-me-not Projected above the sod.

Where the grasses grow to the strength of His will
And the breezes of heaven blow free . . .
Since mother is buried on the little lone hill
It will be good enough for me.

—STELLA V. JONES.

GRIT AND DETERMINATION SPELL SUCCESS.

By Juliette Frazier.

If you cannot raise what you would like to, why not raise what you can? There is hardly a piece of land on which something or other cannot be raised successfully. The trouble with most people is that they set their minds on raising certain kinds of crops, or some particular kind of live stock, and if their land fails to be suitable for these, they accept failure as something inevitable.

A farmer, with a wife and five small children, who came from the East about six years ago, fell victim of an unscrupulous real estate dealer who induced him to buy a 40-acre farm which had been vacant for a number of years, because most of the land was not tillable.

The new owner's plans were to plant about 20 acres of this land in raspberries and strawberries, to keep from fourteen to sixteen cows, for which he figured he could raise enough hay on the remaining 15 acres, leaving five acres for a small family orchard, vegetable garden, etc.

But before a year had rolled around the new owner discovered that most of this land was under water the greater part of the year. And the rest of it was so rocky that it was impossible to plow and cultivate it well enough to raise berries on it.

Some of the neighbors told him that he and his family would starve to death on this land, and advised him to give it up. But this farmer only raised his determined chin and said, "I have to make it, one way or another, all my savings are invested in this land now." He was the sort of a man who would not recognize defeat.

Today the rocky portion of the land, which comprises about fifteen acres, is planted in grapes. Grapes grow well on it, and several tons of grapes are harvested from this vineyard yearly. The lower part of the place, which is submerged by the back waters of a nearby slough most of the year, has been fenced off into an ideal pasture for Pekin ducks. Four hundred and thirty ducks which were raised on this "useless" ground were taken to market last holiday season. Fourteen acres of this land produces enough Jerusalem artichokes and sunflowers to fatten from 8 to 10 hogs, and from 75 to a hundred turkeys yearly. The best part of the land is occupied by the family orchard and vegetable garden.

This proves that where there is a will, and determination to succeed, there is also a way.

A STRAY KITTEN.

A tiny stray kitten, fluffy and white, Once came to my door while crying with fright.

He told me plainly that he was a stray
And must have a home in which he could stay.

I gave him some milk, warm, creamy and sweet,
While stroking his fur and watching him eat.

And then he began to sing a song
Whose purring cadence just sweeps me along.

I lifted him into my arms to caress—
Thus both of us found a friend in distress.

—ELIZABETH GILES WINN.

Jeffersonian Democrats Declare Stand They Will Make In Coming Presidential Election

Texas Democrats Will Support Landon At The Polls In November.

With a full realization that our country faces a political crisis transcending all partisan interests, we Democrats of Texas now pledge our best services to the Nation upon a non-partisan basis. We reassert our belief in the Constitution, in the rights of the States, and in the Jeffersonian principle. Believing thus, we must condemn the Roosevelt Administration.

The issue before the American people today is not Roosevelt versus Landon; nor is it the Republican Party versus the Democratic Party. The issue here is the same as that which rocks the rest of the world, and that issue is regimentation versus freedom and democracy. We are confronted with a change in our form of government from a Democracy, in which the government is the servant of the people, to a Socialistic and Communistic state in which the individual becomes the servant of the state and loses all personal freedom and all property rights.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt is not a Democrat and never has been in sympathy with the principles of the Democratic party.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt has aided and abetted the aims of the Socialists and Communists, and has set up a board of advisers known as the "brain trust," which is largely made up of red radicals not in sympathy with our form of government.

WE CHARGE that few members of this "brain trust" have ever been connected with the Democratic party prior to the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for President.

WE CHARGE that the key positions in the numerous bureaus set up by Mr. Roosevelt are now held by radical appointees selected for the most part by Felix Frankfurter, known throughout the country for his red radical activities.

WE CHARGE that the radicals, whether they call themselves socialists or communists, now have the nation by the throat, thanks being due Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Perkins (a married woman following the Russia system of not taking her husband's name), Felix Frankfurter, Rex Tugwell, and others.

WE CHARGE that all New Deal acts such as NRA, AAA, and others in which business, farmers, and the rest of us were to be regimented and directed by some bureaucrat are the brain children of radicals, one of whom is Tugwell. We will prove to you before November 3rd, by quoting Mr. Tugwell himself, that he is as red or redder than Stalin, the Russian dictator.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt has shown no interest in the 1932 platform of the Democratic party except to repeal prohibition.

WE CHARGE that most of the New Deal bills he forced through Congress were specifically called for in the 1932 Communist and Socialist platforms. We will prove this to you before November 3rd by showing you word for word the platforms of these parties and showing you how the New Deal acts met the demand of these platforms.

WE CHARGE that when Mr. Roosevelt insisted on having all relief and PWA money given to him to use at his discretion it was for the purpose of getting control of Congress, by denying any Congressman money-spending projects in his district if he voted against the President's bills.

WE CHARGE that Jim Farley, the Tammany politician and ex-prize fight commissioner, expended this money in building up a political machine to Tammanize the United States, and has succeeded in doing so to an extent that it is as vicious as it is in New York City.

WE CHARGE that the Nation cannot survive the continuation of the present, flagrant, wasteful spending far beyond its income, Mr. Roosevelt expects to continue it. Our national debt is now more than $35,000,000,000, or approximately $1,500 for the average family. The interest charges of 2 1/2% upon this debt amount to $880,000,000.

The President's program of soaking the rich by increasing the taxes on all income above $50,000 does not provide enough money to pay even the interest charges on this debt. If the entire income of this group were confiscated, it would just pay the interest charges, which as shown by the United States Treasury Department figures for 1934, was $890,936,207. The New Dealers have put the mill-stone of debt around the necks of our children and our grandchildren. We believe these debts are being piled up for the purpose of bankrupting the Nation to forward the plans of the Communists and Socialists.

WE CHARGE that the most active bureau in Washington today is that of propaganda, through which millions of dollars of taxpayers' money is spent to misinform him and sing praises of the New Deal.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt is wholly un dependable. His record is one of broken promises. The Nation and business cannot go forward when it cannot rely on the statements of the President.

WE CLAIM that Landon and Knox are the only national nominees defending the time-honored principles of Democracy. The most important plank in their platform is that in defense of State's rights to prevent the centralization of power in Washington, where some organized minority can seize control of our government.

WE CLAIM that we are going to carry this state against Roosevelt. The normal Republican vote is about 150,000. Add to this 50,000 Republicans who ordinarily do not vote because they feel that it is useless. Add to this 150,000 Democrats who will not vote for Roosevelt under any circumstances. You know your own community is full of this kind of Democrats. Add to this 150,000 Democrats who will gladly join us if they think there is any use to vote against him. This alone will mean the election against Roosevelt, but add to this thousands more who will vote against Roosevelt when they are shown the fallacies and frauds of the New Deal. We Democrats are not going to let the New Dealers and Tammany Jim put any collar around our necks. A Texas voter is never a yellow dog unless he is a politician.

We want you to step out on the firing line with us. Are you willing to help us in the distribution of our literature, or in getting money to forward this work? We have a large number of organizations throughout Texas. We want one in every town.

Dear Mr. Davis:

Please accept our sincere thanks for the kindly article that you wrote on the occasion of the passing of our
Mr. Erich Lengfeld. Mr. Lengfeld was a very high grade man. He was most upright and faithful in his dealings with the trade, and built up for this Company an enviable business.
We were all deeply moved by his untimely death.

Mr. Lengfeld will be succeeded in the territory by a young man, Mr.
M. A. Hoffman, who has been in our employ for quite a number of years, and who stands very high with us. We bespeak your consideration for Mr.
Hoffman who will call on you in the future for this Company.

With regards,
Yours very truly,

and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ton-dre, left Sunday for Dallas where they will visit the Texas Centennial during their vacation.

County Judge R. J. Noonan, Sheriff C. J. Schuehle and County Attorney H. E. Haas were in Devine Tuesday to hold an examining trial for two men charged with attempted burglary there last week. The men, Joe Lahood and Robert Batilla, were placed under $500 bond each, to appear before the next session of the District Court of Medina County.

The frequent showers over last week-end, and the consequent uncertainty of ungraded roads on the one hand and creek crossings on the other, kept a number of Hondo people from attending the Community Fair at LaCoste Sunday. A gravelled road to intersect the Highway at Dunlay and connect with the gravelled streets at LaCoste, via Noonan and Pearson, would prove a great convenience to the traveling public, and especially facilitate the reaching of the county seat by residents of the irrigated area.

Next week is Fire Prevention week.
In cooperation with the pupils in the Hondo Schools a survey of fire hazards will be attempted by the Hondo Volunteer Fire Co. with a view to removing the dangers wherever possible and minimizing risks as much as possible. In addition to the added security against fire for the property of all of us, it is hoped that a material saving in insurance rates may eventually accrue as a result of fewer hazards. Cooperate with the fire boys wherever you can; they are serving the community free.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. ANNA NEUMANN.

For the second time within a week the funeral bell has been tolling sad news in this comparatively small community. Even where the ravages of a fatal disease can be watched day by day and the outcome is almost beyond a doubt, the shock and the corresponding grief touches the heart when the last hour strikes. The more so when it means a lifelong resident of this section who has seen more of the history of the county, from feeble beginning to the present progressive stage, than the average citizen, due to an extremely high age that was allotted to her and which was not lived in vain. We bow in mourning with the bereaved.

The deceased, Mrs. Anna Neumann, was a daughter of Dietrich Haackmann and his spouse, Anna Gertrude, nee Kerste. She was born on April 27, 1849, at Quilhi, brought to the Lord in holy baptism the same year, getting her schooling and later her instruction for confirmation and was confirmed in 1864.

In 1867 she joined her lot with Oldmann F. Neumann and lived with him in happy uninterrupted marriage for 49 years. On their wedding day they also became members of the Quilhi Lutheran Church, a fine custom, indeed, and both needed the strength and guidance and comfort during those turbulent days, the hard and incessant work, the constant dangers from Indian raids, frequent diseases due to exposure and lack of medical aid—the nearest doctor at Castroville, and the trip was made afoot—the aftermath conditions of the Civil War, the uncertainty of harvests on account of long drouths, a number of heavy floods, with swift and heavy destruction. They needed a mighty Lord into whose care they could commend their life and future.

Nine children were born of this union, but four times the parents stood at the casket of their loved ones. In 1916 her husband was snatched from her side after a long and painful disease. But she held out with good courage and blessed with steady health and vigor. For many years she spent her widowhood in her little home all alone, the children either working somewhere or moving into other sections after their marriage. And to that home she stuck with every fibre of her heart, making many little calls here and there afoot, being helpful wherever she could, especially at the parsonage and church premises, also doing many a kind turn to former lonely pastors, with her cooking and general assistance.

She was a devout Christian, admirably regular in attendance up to her last months, humble and peaceful, bright and ready at the beck and call of the needy. The Ladies' Aid she joined early and never denied her helping hand. She was an honorary member of the Luther League from its very inception and gave hearty support.

In her declining years, she moved into the home of her son, Fritz Neumann, and was given the needful attention. But her strength was going fast. Now and then an ailment, then a little recuperation, and finally, a few weeks ago, she was confined to her home, a little later, to her bed and though there was no pronounced and mortal disease of any kind, her days and resources were on the wane. With good patience she bore her cross, relying upon her Lord, thankful for every comforting word by her minister, preparing herself with the Lord's supper for the impending tour through the valley of shadows never wavering in her childlike faith, ready for her Master's call. It came on September the 25th, about six in the morning. Her age was 87 years, 4 months, 28 days. May she enjoy the peace of her Lord Jesus.

Those mourning at her parting are her surviving children: Mrs. Mary Pochler, Brackettville; Mrs. Lizzie Chism, Utopia; Mrs. Ben de Grodt, Hondo; Otto L. Neumann, Upper Quilhi; Fritz Neumann, New Fountain; 26 grandchildren, 36 great grandchildren. The Lord's comfort to the sad and weary.

Funeral services were held at the Homer Funeral Home on September the 26th, at 3 P. M., with interment at the old Quilhi Cemetery, at her wish, she being the last person admitted at that graveyard.

Christ has brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel.
C. W.

of the past two weeks, car lot shipments of corn have been heavy. Dur-there had been billed out from Hon-these were loaded at Hondo and eight at Dunlay. Other shipments were nil except for one car of hegari. During the same period fifty bales of cotton had been shipped, bringing the total for the season up to 275 bales. It is estimated that this will equal if not somewhat exceed 50% of the total crop. There is still considerable corn ungathered, and farmers complain that laborers are hard to secure and reluctant to work.

FORD TO HAVE USED CAR SALES

For the first time in the history the automobile industry, Ford dealers throughout the United States will launch next Thursday a nation wide used car and truck clearance sale, which will continue through October.

The aim of the drive is to put the hands of new owners before month ends more than 150,000 secondhand used cars and trucks. In on in trade in the sale of part of 1,600,000-odd new 1936 Ford vehicles produced this season. The drive not only the first nationwide clearance sale of its kind ever conducted by Ford dealers en masse, but is the first nationwide event of its kind in the history of the motor industry.

Launched just in advance of advent of cold weather, the clearance sale is intended to enable the whose own cars are not likely to withstand the rigors of winter driving to acquire without great expense used cars or trucks which serve safely and dependably. Dealers also will stress the advantage to be gained by buying before trade-in values of used cars now in service decline appreciably as the result of the announcement of 1937 models.

Many of the used cars and trucks in stocks to be offered by Ford dealers during the clearance sale will marketed under the "R & G" plan, new and guaranteed plan.

The "R & G" plan permits a purchaser to drive a used car or truck bearing the label for two full years as a probationary period. At the end of this period, if he finds that the vehicle is not satisfactory in any way, he may return it and get back full amount paid. The plan has been adopted more than a year ago in order to impress upon the public the fact that they may buy used cars and trucks through Ford dealers with confidence.

In preparation for the sale, dealers throughout the country are pricing their entire used car stock trucks, in order to permit the clearance without delay. Used cars lots are being refurbished and repared for the event. Arrangements are being made for special activities throughout the month.

One hundred years of pecan development in Texas, leading pecan producing area of the world, will be portrayed in the pecan exhibit being arranged at the Centennial exposition which opens at Dallas June 6. J. F. Posborough, extension horticulturist at Texas A. and M. College, is actively interested in the arrangement of the exhibit. During the period from 1836 to 1860 pecans were eaten by Indian tribes which roamed the state. Large quantities of the nuts were carried by them in baskets. In years of large production, pecans were stored in coal to keep them fresh. The first intimation that pecans might have commercial value came in 1860 when a few shipments were made in barrels to the eastern states. In 1900 a Texan, E. E. Risien of San Saba, Texas, was the first man who budded a pecan tree. He took buds from trees that bore good nuts and budded them into trees that bore inferior nuts. Since that time pecans have become commercially important in Texas. Millions of pounds of nuts are harvested each year and shipped to other states. Texas is known as the Empire of Pecans.

Both in number and in total capitalization, new charters granted Texas corporations during April declined sharply in comparison with the preceding month and the like month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The number of new charters totaled 138, against 173 in March and 166 in April last year, decreases of 20 per cent and 17 per cent respectively. Total capitalization, $1,304,000, was down 50 per cent from the preceding month and 37 per cent from the corresponding month last year. The transportation group alone showed an increase in the number of new charters granted over the two comparable periods.

AMERICAN MERCURY APPEARS IN NEW POCKET-SIZE FORMAT.

Famous Magazine of Independent Opinion Also Lowers Price From 50 to 25 Cents With Its October Issue.

New York, Sept. 25.—The increasing tempo of modern American life demands a compact, handy, and convenient type of magazine, according to the editors of THE AMERICAN MERCURY, who are publishing their October issue in a new pocket-size format and at the reduced price of twenty-five cents. The old-fashioned, leisurely, standard-size magazine of opinion, they say, is doomed to disappear from American newstands, to be replaced by lively, up-to-the-minute, and easily-read magazines. The first issue of THE MERCURY, which appeared twelve years ago, was in itself a revolution in the magazine field and was later widely imitated. The editors now believe that they are taking another revolutionary but necessary step forward.

The tastes and reading habits of Americans have been strikingly changed by such magazines as READERS DIGEST and TIME, according to THE MERCURY. No longer do readers have the leisure to spend two or three hours with a large magazine containing thousands of words. They demand literary entertainment in terse, compact form—articles that are brief yet comprehensive.

The decision to make a startling change in THE MERCURY'S format and price was reached after the extraordinary success of THE AMERICAN MERCURY DIGEST, a magazine issued experimentally by THE MERCURY. THE DIGEST on its second appearance, sold more newsstand copies than all the Quality magazines combined. Its immediate success clearly indicated the desires of the reading public. And its price, 24 Counties to be Represented at San Antonio Meeting.

A number of prominent Medina County property owners have been invited to meet with similar groups from 24 counties in San Antonio next Thursday, October 8, for the purpose of forming a regional unit of the Texas Property Owners Association, according to P. E. Gragg, president of the San Antonio Real Estate Board and temporary chairman of the property owners group in this territory.

Organizing for the purpose of fact-finding and making recommendations for tax reform in state and local units of government, the property owners associations, which already have enrolled several thousand members, are expected to embrace every county in the state, Mr. Gragg said. Broadening of the tax base to include various forms of taxable wealth now escaping their share of taxation, remedying the absurd inequality of present assessments, and the making of a comprehensive study of new, available tax sources are among the objectives of the property owner groups. An appreciable scaling down of taxes on land, livestock, and other forms of "tangible" wealth can be expected when the taxpayers unite in making the problems of taxation their business, instead of merely grumbling about high levies, Mr. Gragg declared.

J. C. Mytinger of Wichita Falls, president of the Texas Property Owners Association, and E. B. Bynum, Jr., of Fort Worth, executive secretary, are expected to attend the San Antonio meeting, which will begin with a luncheon at noon in the Pan-American Room of the Gunter Hotel. Owners of real estate in the following counties are invited to attend the organization meeting and align themselves with the property owner movement: Atascosa, Bandera, Bexar, Comal, Dimmit, Duval, Edwards, Frio, Gillespie, Guadalupe, Karnes, Kendall, Kerr, Kinney, LaSalle, Maverick, McMullen, Medina, Real, Val Verde, Uvalde, Webb, Wilson, and Zavala.

These counties comprise Region 14 of the Texas Property Owners Association, which is to be made up of 20 regional units.

"It is desired that Medina County be well represented in our regional organization, and any property owner who finds it possible to attend next week's meeting will be more than welcome to take part," Mr. Gragg said. "We should like to have at least one person from each of the 24 counties among the officers and directors of the association."

SAN ANTONIO LIVESTOCK.
MONDAY, SEPT. 28, 1936.

(Federal-State Market News Service)

Calves, fat cows and weighty bulls sold stronger Monday on the San Antonio market. Trading was active and price levels were fully steady to strong, with instances higher, as compared with last week's close. Good clearances were made on early rounds on practically all offerings. Estimated receipts consisted of 400 cattle and 600 calves.

Good fat calves and light weight yearlings sold readily at $5.25 to $5.75 with several lots up to $6.00. Medium grade offerings brought $4.50 to $5.00 with "rannies" down to $3.50. Common to medium grade

Oklahoma this season, presumably the result of drouth in the latter state. Fort Worth maintained its strong position as a market for Texas livestock during the month. Some of the other large markets, however, showed some significant changes. For example, more than three times as many hogs were shipped to the Los Angeles market as were forwarded to this market in April last year. Chicago received more than 10,000 Texas sheep, East St. Louis nearly 7,000, St. Joseph 5,000 and the State of Iowa 8,000 against practically none last year. Regions of the State showing the most marked increases of livestock movements were: Cattle, from the northwest plains, the Trans Pecos Country, the Edwards plateau and South Texas; hogs, from the south high plains, and East Texas; sheep, from the Edwards plateau and North Texas. The large shipments of Texas livestock during the month, together with the maintenance of a favorable price level indicates the continuation of the growing income of the livestock raisers of the State.

Unique among American publications, THE MERCURY favors no political party, and never advances panaceas to cure the ills of humanity. It is devoted solely to discovering the truth about important questions of the day and to presenting that truth through the writings of leading authors. THE MERCURY does believe in America and the American system of government and life. At a time when attacks on Americanism are coming from every quarter, the magazine has been outstanding in its defense of national traditions. Among the articles in the October issue are "The Case for Dr. Landon" by H. L. Mencken, a spirited and colorful summation of the choice that faces the American voter in November; "Sex Problems of the Modern Parent" by Havelock Ellis, an important and interesting approach to a vital subject by the world's most renowned authority on sex; "Fame and the Poet" by Thomas Wolfe, an unusual short story by the brilliant Southern writer; "Young Men See Visions" by William Allen White, a timely review by the well-known Middle-western editor and author; "Loose Ladies of New Orleans" by Herbert Asbury, a striking description of night-life and vice in the Southern metropolis; "Is Roosevelt a Socialist?" by Harold Lord Varnay, a painstaking inquiry into the present trend of the Administration; and many other articles, stories, and poems by distinguished writers.

PEARSALL MAVERICKS DEFEAT HONDO OWLS 7-6.

The Pearsall Mavericks defeated the Owls Friday by a score of 7-6. Nearly the entire game was played in a hard rain, and the field was very wet.

In the early part of the first quarter the Mavericks scored their touchdown. A kick from placement was good for the extra point. The ball was kept in play in the middle of the field during the remainder of the initial quarter. The quarter ended with the score: Pearsall 7, Hondo 0.

Following a punt the Owls began a drive which ended when Captain Rothe went around left end for a touchdown. However, on this play Rothe was hurt and had to be carried from the field, and was unable to play during the remainder of the game. A kick from placement was blocked. The first half ended with the score: Pearsall Mavericks 7, Hondo Owls 6.

During the third quarter, the ball was in Hondo's territory most of the time. In the latter part of this quarter Laxson of Pearsall returned a punt about sixty yards and crossed the goal line standing up. However, the Mavericks were penalized and the play did not count. Tommie Danie, one of Hondo's best linemen, was hurt near the end of the quarter and had to remain out of the game. Score at the end of the third quarter: Pearsall 7, Hondo 6.

The entire fourth quarter was played in the Owls' territory. The Mavericks drove continually toward the Owls' goal line and were within about a yard of it when the game ended. Final score: Pearsall 7, Hondo 6.

Other scores which will interest Hondo fans are as follows:

Carrizo Springs 6; Del Rio 0.
Uvalde 6; Crystal City 6.
Rocksprings 7; Sabinal 0.
Taylor 20; Bastrop 0.
Smithville 37; San Marcos C.
Alamo Heights 25; Sinton 0.

The Owls' next game is with Bastrop and will be played in Bastrop Friday night at 8:00. As many students as possible can should go and help the team win another victory. School will end at the regular time, as you can easily leave here at 4 P. M. and reach Bastrop before time for the game to begin.

GO TO BASTROP FRIDAY.

SABINAL:

Vice-President: Charles Stuckey.

The Hondo Chapter will send two delegates and two executive committee members to Pearsall Saturday, October 3, to the District Meeting of the Future Farmers.

There are fifty-two members in the Hondo Chapter of the F. F. A. at the present time.

NEW TYPEWRITERS TO BE ADDED.

Five new typewriters will be put into the typing room sometime within the next two weeks to replace the five old Remingtons. The typing students should really appreciate all the new equipment which they are fortunate enough to have this year. (Some of them ought to be typing about sixty words a minute in a week or two, if good teaching and equipment has anything to do with their success.)

SCHOOL BUS TO ARRIVE THIS WEEK.

The Hondo High School bus will arrive sometime during this week. Everyone is very anxious to see it, and we wonder who will get the first ride. As you know, this bus will be used for the football, baseball, basketball, and other athletic teams, the Vocational Agriculture boys, etc.

TACKY PARTY.

La Verne Ulbrich entertained with a tacky party at her home last Friday night. Everyone arrived at the party dressed as tackily as possible, and there were gales of laughter over the appearances of everyone.

George Hull and Kathryn Coffey were the winners for being dressed the tackiest. Kathryn was presented with a cornob pipe and George was given a pacifier. Cards and bunco were played throughout the evening. Delicious sandwiches, cake, fritos, and punch were served to the following: Eva Mae Hull, Helen Benton, Kathryn Coffey, Wanda Dawson, Eva Earnest, La Verne Ulbrich, George Hull, Tommy Danie, Albert Weisner, Champ Carter, Bertram Eckhart, Jack King, and Jack Ulbrich.

When the party was over, everyone departed for their homes in an old Model T car.

Miss Stubbs, the H. E. sponsor, presided until the president, Ginger Fusselman, was elected. Then the following officers were elected: Jo Reilly, vice-president; Merle McCall, secretary; Gwen Gray, treasurer; and Wanda Dawson, reporter. It was unanimously decided to have some sort of initiation for the freshmen who desire to join the Home Economics Club. The officers will meet some time soon to appoint the necessary committees.

ASSEMBLY HELD.

An assembly of the students of Hondo High School was held in the Study Hall Monday morning. After an encouraging talk to the football team by Mr. Barry, the Pep Squad gave four rousing yells in honor of the Owls. Although the Owls were defeated by a small margin Friday, the student body, the Pep Squad, and the faculty are still backing the team and we still believe that we have the best team in the district. Friday seemed to be an off-day for the teams in the northern half of this district as three of the teams—Hondo, Del Rio and Sabinal—lost their games, and the other team—Uvalde—gained only a tie.

Life is a long lesson in humility.—James M. Barrie.

Wisdom allows nothing to be good that will not be so forever; no man to be happy but that needs no other happiness than what he has within himself; no man to be great or powerful that is not master of himself.—Seneca.

HEARD FROM AGAIN.

The fame and popularity of our two local boys at Rice Institute, Jackie Schuehle and Buddy Mechler, continue to spread. Again we hear of them in Lloyd Gregory's column, "Looking 'Em Over" in the Houston Post.

The title reads: "Rio Grande Valley Fans Are Pulling for Schuehle, Mechler of Rice Owls". The article follows:

Mynatt Smith of McAllen, generally conceded one of the Rio Grande Valley's most talented newspapermen, writes:

"Rio Grande Valley football fans have been reading with no small amount of interest about two Rice Institute grid hopefuls who at one time stood those same Valley fans on their ears by playing some of the best high school football ever seen in this section. The occasion was the South Texas regional class B title game played at Donna Friday, December 14, 1934, and the lads in question are Jackie Schuehle and Floyd Mechler, both of Hondo.

"Schuehle ought to make Rice a fine back before long. In that Donna game he did everything but play marbles in the middle of the field. I do believe the guy could take a ball from scrimmage, jump into the air, fold his legs, pick his teeth and toss a 40-yard pass before hitting the ground again. He's that nimble.

"The last recollection Valley fans have of Mechler, who was a real power house, was the time he scored one of Hondo's touchdowns with one Donna man hanging onto each leg and another riding his back. And he went across the line standing up!

"Needless to say, Hondo won that game, 33-0. Donna got inside the Hondo 30-yard line, I think it was, on one occasion.

"If Schuehle and Mechler are as 'hot' in their senior college years as they were in senior high school days, you fellows up there around Rice can afford to forget 'Ole Jaw'n' McCauley and Bill Wallace for a while at least.

"Best regards, and be sure to keep 'Looking 'Em Over' alive. It sort of gives the coffee a batter taste of mornings."

Dear Sir:
You will be pleased to know, I am sure, that we are continuing our schedule of newspaper advertising right on through the fall and winter months.

Within the next few days you will receive insertion orders for 2,000 lines of copy to be run during October and November, the first insertion to be for October 15. This copy will feature our famous GULFPRIDE OIL. This is the first time in the history of Gulf that we have had an extensive campaign on our premium 35c oil.

GULFPRIDE has attained its present position entirely by virtue of the word-of-mouth advertising of those who have tried it. Heretofore it has been impractical to place a real advertising program behind GULFPRIDE, simply because the demand for it taxed our original facilities for manufacturing it. Within recent months, however, these facilities have been greatly enlarged and we are now prepared to go out and do a thorough merchandising job.

We will appreciate your cooperation. We have no special request to make regarding the merchandising assistance you may render us but we would appreciate it if you would make it a point to call upon the consignee, dealer, or supervisor in your territory prior to October 15, advising him of your desire to cooperate in making the program a success and offering to him such assistance as you feel you can render.

In closing, may I say that we appreciate the help that you have given us in times passed and express to you our sincere wish for a highly successful year.

Very truly yours,
O. H. CARLISLE,
Division Manager

As an obligation it comes ahead of your grocery bill, dental bill, or rent. It will have to be paid—by your children or their children's children, if not by you. The only source of governmental credit is your property. The only source of governmental revenue is the extraction of money from your pocket, through taxation, to pay government bills.

The national debt is constantly growing, and some authorities anticipate it will be increased by ten to thirty per cent within the comparatively near future. If the citizens of this country permit continued and unrestricted prodigality in government, they should not kick about following the Pied Piper to the poorhouse.—Industrial News Review.

OFF-HAND OBSERVATIONS.

By R. R. Claridge.

Looking over some old stuff of mine, some 40 years old, I thought to send a few paragraphs of it to FARMING. It may indicate to its readers that instead of our governmental and social situation improving it is getting worse.

"In between the grower and the user there is too big a rake-off for some one. The Southern Cotton Association and the Farmers' Union think they are on track of the trouble, and are trying to do something about it."

But big business and its Farm Bureau got them both.

"When we get our schools centralized and have to haul the children four or five miles to have them 'graduated', it will be a great scheme, especially when we get a law compelling us to do it."

Well, we got it and the highway, and the big trucks to knock them off.

"While some women are getting a trifle too 'advanced' to suit my old-fashioned ideas, I see and hail the day near at hand when she shall at least claim her soul and body as her own, and against which claim no man shall dare to say her nay."

Since when the above was penned, she has come to vote and hold office, and takes the job more seriously, generally speaking, than do the men.

"The trotting horse, outside the betting ring, is all right. The thorough cut high, and Mrs. Will Nehr for low score. Others present were Mesdames Louis Carle, Jr., O. J. Reinhart, H. C. Rothe, Herman Ney, Eric Rothe, and A. J. Finger, Misses Cornelia Koch, Josie, Sara and Ethel Rothe. Refreshments consisted of rolled sandwiches, salad, and iced tea.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER.

Miss Hazel Koch, a bride of the week, was honored with a lovely miscellaneous shower in the Parish Hall on Sunday afternoon. Beautiful queen's wreath in profusion decorated the hall. Miss Alice Rohrbach had charge of the bride's book in which about seventy guests registered.

The honoree, lovely in a rust crepe frock with brown hat and accessories, entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played on the piano by Miss Antoinette Dubray. Little Misses Mary Louise Koch and Martina Nester escorted the honoree to the place of honor. After admiring the many beautiful and useful gifts, the guests were served ice cream and cake with dainty favors of queen's wreath.

A Guest.

BRIDGE CLUB.

Miss Grace Zinsmeyer was hostess to the Bridge Club and several additional guests on Thursday afternoon. Bouquets of Queen's Crown brightened the rooms. Mrs. Eric Rothe won the high score award for members and Mrs. Arnold Zerr won the guests' high score award. Mrs. E. R. Finck cut high and Miss Lucy Rothe held low score.

A delicious salad course was served to the following: Mesdames Ed. Finger, John Kieber, Ferd Koch, Eric Rothe, Arnold Finger, Ben Koch, John Zinsmeyer, Herman Ney, Henry Muenink, Martin Zinsmeyer, Alfred Zinsmeyer, Rely Carle, Arnold Zerr, Charles Langfeld, Henry Biry and E. R. Finck; Misses Tina Rothe, Cornelia Koch, Armine and Lillian Fohn and Lucy Rothe.

The D'Hanis Parent-Teacher Association will observe Father's Night, October 9, 1936. Mr. O. J. Reinhart will speak on "Intelligence".

oughbred race horse is as much an accessory of gambling as the poker-chip or the keno layout, and is out of place in the animal economy of twentieth century civilization. When he becomes extinct, along with the bulldog and the 'tin-horn' sport, there will be no regret outside the dives."

Since we got the buz-wagon, we don't need the trotting horse.

"Being a good democrat, I do not of course, believe in a property qualification for the ballot. But I do believe in a character qualification. If I had my way, for instance, the man who should sell his vote would be disfranchised, and the man who should buy it would be jailed."

"The boards of trade of the leading cities are organizing to influence financial legislation. The interests of the producing classes are about as safe in the hands of these people, as would be the interests of a flock of sheep under the protecting agency of a convention of coyotes. I do not mean by this that all members of these boards of trade organizations are inimical to the industrial interests of the country, but I do mean that the dominating spirit of such organizations is a deadly menace to the material welfare of the farmer, the artisan, and even the merchant. Those duty it should be to note well what the gamblers desire, and then to do all in their power to see that it is not accomplished."

"When we elect people to office if we would compel them to do the work themselves, instead of furnishing them deputies to do it, there would probably not be so many office-holders after every job. Their duties, moreover, would no doubt keep them so busy that they would not have so much time to build fences around their jobs."

"If people of this country do not destroy the anarchy of boodle and the anarchy of bomb, or bum, these dangerous extremes will destroy this government. They are grinding our great middle masses between them—playing both ends against the middle, so to speak. The middle should play the hose both ways. It should be charged with political formaldehyde."

"The big, gilded anarchist looks upon the poor man in a good deal the same light with which he regards his horses or his dogs. The bomb-throwing anarchist hates the rich man for no other reason than that he is rich, and would destroy him if he had the power. They are both at war with the men, rich or poor, who desire only that which is justly their due from their fellow men or their government."

"One time at a big North Texas 'getherin', I saw a big Indian trailing along with nothing heavier to 'tote' than a big red apple, which he was eating with unction. Behind him, and struggling after him, was a little old, dried-up squaw, with a 40-pound (estimated) papoose strapped upon her back, and no apple Sizing up the outfit, I thanked God for American civilization. The same afternoon I ran across a half-starved white woman in a ramshackle wagon, to which was hitched a half-starved pair of ewe-necked, cat-hampered broncos. Along with the woman were a half-dozen 'taller-faced' kids, that had probably never had all they could eat in their lives. The 'lay-out' was located in the broiling sun, front of a suburban saloon (the worst kind of saloon) and afforded a picture of hard luck rarely to be witnessed this side of the land of gall and laziness. The poor woman asked me if I would not go into the saloon and try to get 'my husband to come and go home', describing the son-of-a-gun, and failing to do him justice. He was having a high old time, too drunk to understand what I said to him. I asked the woman how far she lived, and she said about nine miles. I advised her to drive on home and leave her missing link, which horrified her. Said she 'couldn't think of such a thing; why he'd kill me.' As I left her I revised my vote of thanks to the Almighty for our boasted civilization."

"The Democratic party, buzzard-like, waited thirty years for the Republican party to stink itself to death. The trouble was that the louder the G. O. P. smelled the more the other critter got used to it, and finally, tired waiting, it appropriated the G. O. P. smell, which, at great expense to the nation, it has enlarged and improved till it literally fills the land with an odor so awful that even John Sherman is holding his nose. A few old Jacksonians are trying to dis-infect it, but it looks as if they will not have much better luck than did the misguided woman who undertook to kill a skunk with a case knife. The rank and file of the Democratic party mean all right, but it is cursed with a lot of leaders who would not hesitate to utilize the ashes of Old Hickory to keep the bugs off their cucumber vines."

"The foregoing paragraph was printed before the election, and to the delight of the writer, made a few old lopsided political perverts on both sides mad. Well, the old Jacksonians got rid of the smell all right, most of it going back where it came from. The trouble was that when that stink left it, the Democratic party was somewhat like Sam Jones' steamboat on the Tombigbee river, which couldn't get up steam enough to run and whistle at the same time, and so it had to stop to whistle."

GOOD SOD HOLDS BANK ALONG SMALL STREAM.

Small streams flowing between sharply rising slopes that erode and wash easily often furnish ample proof of the value of grass, trees, and shrubs along the banks. Glimore Creek near Winona, Minn., is an example.

The Soil Conservation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture reports on two farms on this creek that are divided by a line fence. On the down-stream side of the fence the creek banks have not been grazed. They bear a dense growth of cottonwoods and willows, and other vegetation which has held down the width of the channel and kept the banks fairly low and sloping.

On the upstream side of the fence the land is grazed to the water's edge. The creek is wide and the banks—with no soil holding vegetation—are raw, open cuts carrying great quantities of silt and water during heavy rains. This soil could be held in place by low-growing trees and grass.

The channel on the farm where the banks are unprotected is 2 to 3 feet deeper and 16 to 30 feet wider than where the banks have a heavy growth of vegetation. At one time banks on the downstream side had no cover but grazing was stopped, giving trees a chance.

A NIGHT IN JUNE.

"And there are dreams still to be dreamed,
And suns beyond setting,
And hours like those of today
And tonight, past all forgetting."

Romance, my sweet, must be lived,
Life cannot be hoarded, Beauty, love, are ours to give,
Without regret or such sordid.

The time is now and here, mine own,
Not in the days to be,
Already our hour hath flown,
Down midwood, 'neath a Sumac tree.

The treasures we find and cherish,
pet,
Jewels along the way,
Snatch them eye—cancel the debt,
Ere comes the sheriff, grim dismay.

Laughter is music, even to mute,
Lovers dare not be dumb,
So sound joys upon thy lute, Ere sorrow or the Reaper come."

—HUGH FARLEY.

CCATILLO OF CALIFORNIA.

After God made the lovely perfumed rose
And flowers that we see on every hill,
He fashioned trees for migratory birds
And secret deep-flung canyons at His will;
It seems, He tossed His colors all
Upon the desert's half completed shape,
And said 'Enough, it is the seventh day'
For every mountain wears a different drape.

Oh artist! you have been there, why should I Bespeak these chanting praises as I woo—
It is to city dwellers that I cry
"The ocattillo flames in red, for you".

THE RISE.

While the weather had been threatening for a week very little rain fell in this immediate vicinity, but vivid flashes of lightning Saturday night in the north indicated that a cloudburst was falling into the headwaters of the Medina. The old Medina, which was still on a rampage from the two rises last week, started rising Sunday and steadily rose until Monday morning when a 15-foot rise was recorded. An immense amount of water swept Gulfward, and it will be several weeks before the stream can be crossed. While on-
